The enclosed poem and article are taken from a religious journal, and as there are other articles by clear headed authors, that I think are the right things in the right place, I intend to fill this column for per haps, some weeks to come, with matter that is better than anything I could write.

Sins Against Knowledge.

There was a time when men did not know the evils occasioned by the sale of ntoxicating liquors; but that time is past. Physicians of the first eminence, and in great numbers, have testified that it is langerous and destructive—that men can-dangerous and destructive—that the cannot use it as a beverage without injury—that it induces and aggravates disease—impairs reason and shortons life—and that multitudes are killed by it every year.

Jurists, too, of distinguished character, and judges in great numbers, have testified that this liquor occasions a great majority of all the criaces which are committed, One says, "of eleven murders committed, all except one were occasioned by strong drink." Another says, "of eleven murders committed, all were occasioned by intemperance." Another says, "of twenty murders examined by me, all were occasioned by intemperance." Another says, "of incre than two hundred murders committed in the United States in a year, nearly all had their origin in drinking."

drinking."
These facts and many others whichmight be multiplied to an almost indefinite extent, are now known; and they are known to the owners of spirits. It is known, too, that hundreds of thousands have ceased to use this liquor, and that their health and comfort, and those of their families have been greatly improved —that the amount and severity of sickness has lessened—and the number of puppers, crimes and deaths have been diminished.

It is known that while men continue to It is known that while men continue to use this liquor, intemperance can never be denerated, and its evils never be deneaway. It is known too, that it tends, when used even moderately, to hinder the efficacy of the gospel, and prevent the salvation of men, and thus to rain them not only for time, but for eternity. All this is known to the owners of spirits. And if they, notwithstanding this, not only suffer it to go abroad, but sell it to all who will buy; send it out and spread it through the community—let them know, let it be told, and let it echo through creation, that they, by Jehovah, will be held responsible at his tribunal for its affects. CAVE RESEARCHES IN BORNEO.—The general result of the exploration may be summed up as follows: The existence of ossiferous caves in Borneo has been proved, and at the same time the existence of man in the island with the fauna, whose remains are entombed in these caves. But, both from the recent nature of this fauna, and from the fact that the race of men whose remains are associated with it had already reached and advanced stage of civilization, the discovery has in no way had already resched an advanced stage of civilization, the discovery has in no way aided the solution of these problems for the unraveling of which it was originally promoted. No light has been thrown on the origin of the human race—the history of the developement of the fauna charac-terizing the Indo-Malayan sub-region has not been salvanced—nor, virtually, has any evidence been obtained toward show-ing what race of mon inhabited Borneo previously to the immigration of the vari-

2. He is personally one of the most unpopular public men in the country.

3. He has accumulated immense wealth by methods and practices injurious and daugerous to the people's interests.

4. His character, methods and record are now so well known that if he should be nominated the party would be put on the defensive and certainly defeated.

5. When Governey of the State of New York, he used the power of his position to place in high offices, over the heads of tried and true Democrats, pretended converts from the Republican party. If he were President of the United States his policy would be the same.

6. He is responsible for the attempt made by the "Commission to devise a plan for the government of silies," appointed by him when Governor, to take from the masses of the people in the cities of the State of New York, the right of suffrage in their local affairs.

7. He is responsible for procuring, through his influence as Governor, the passage of the Elevated Railroad law, under which valuable private property in the City of New York, on the streets through which the roads pass, was damaged without compensation to the owners. He made millions of dollars by this great wrong.

8. He is responsible for the tyrannical and high-handed course taken by his tool, Gov. Lucius Robinson, in removing without causes, Demogratic officers elected to office in the City of New York by the votes of more than 190,000 Democratic.

9. His nomination would so demoralize the party that many Democratic States would be lost.

10. His nomination would widen the breach existing in the Democratic party in New York, and certainly give the pivotal State to the Republican nominee.

When elected by a large majority in 1870, instead of relying on the people to place him in the Presidential chair, and calling on the leading Democratic statemen of the country for advice as to the proper measures to be faken, he seted in a weak and cowardly manner, and placed his dependence entirely on intrigue, corruption and cipher dispatches, thereby disgracing the Democracy and lietraying its principles.

Under these irrumstances it seems advisable that cavera research in North-west Borneo should now be left to private enterprise, and that no further expense should be hazarded, at any rate until the higher parts tof the island in the north-east may be convicntly examined.

They follow lines o railroad and water courses, having a grea affinity for anything metalle on their pail and tapping up the water from ponds and disches along their way. The branches of trees are found frayed with the ends like brooms and the bark off not only on the side towards the path of the cyclone but all around the trank. Why? Because the negative electricity in the tree saudienly developed to meet its positive counterpart in the moving storm cloud gasified the sap in the twigs and under the bark with the result above mentioned. The weight of industive evidence of interents goes to show that the form cyclone is a misuromer, and that the phenomens of these too frequent visitations are to be stabiled from the standpoint of magnetic art and electrical science. This is Edison's peculiar province, and now that he has given us the electric light, if he has done so, would it not be well for him to turn his attention towards wandering off or dissipating evclones and tornaboes? The lightening rod man has been in had ofor with the farmers of late. Indeed, tike Othello, he has almost found his occupation gone; but may be the increasing rain wrought by cyclones will revive his drooping industry.

Jesuits was to be executed in the closing of their schools June 16. Henceforth their "comgregations" are unlawful and they must leave France or live there in secrecy and do nothing as teachers of science or morals, or in business. The Society of Jesus is an Immense business corporation as well as a religious order. Belgium and Switzerland have taken measures to prevent the exiles from entering those countries. Catholics are even more decidedly opposed to the Society than Protestants. They have been expelled infrivante three from various countries, chiefly Catholic. America is free and open to overybody, and the Jesuits are aircady here. More will now come here from France. They have a church and college in Boston—Protestants send daughters to their schools! They employ a Protestant organist and give the best music in Boston for fifteen cents. They teach how to lie and stoal for God's glory. They corrupt by making sin religious. They even murder when necessary for their purposes. Their order is rich, secret, independent, powerful and dangerous, Protestants should dreat them as much as Catholics. Pascal's characterization of the diabolical cunning wrought into their constitution and teachings is true to day as ever.—Advance.
